Brad,
I spoke with a woman this AM from your office, she told me that if the venting was through a chimney and NOT vented outside, I did not need a floor plan. This is an existing house they are simply replacing the boiler, the venting is through a chimney with a liner and not directly vented outside.

Lucille, you still need to provide a floor plan with the dimensions for the property. The rest of it is fine, not perfect, but will do this time.
