Peter, Our microfiche contains a permit from 1993 which states that this building is a rooming house. This permit also submitted floor plans. Those floor plans clearly show and number what is on each floor. The first floor shows one apartment in the rear and two rooming units. The second floor shows four rooming units. The third floor shows three rooming units. We approved the permit based on the submitted plans.

Therefore, the approved occupancy for this building is one (1) dwelling unit and nine (9) rooming units.

As I stated before, this is only the approved zoning use zoning use. Any fire or building code issues would be a separate matter from zoning.

I hope this helps you.

Marge
