Hi Elfriede -

Based on this clarification along with the earlier map / diagram this should be satisfactory to meet the Shoreland Zone standards. We agree removing invasive plants is best for the environment in the long run.

Thanks for following up with us. Send us a completed photos for our files.

Thanks - I wasn't sure where the invasive plants were removed from.

It looks like 6 plants are going back into the red box where the Honeysuckle was removed?

Hello Jeff,
ACE removed a massive growth of invasive honeysuckle, I cannot determine number of individual plants. Per email from Ann Machado, an area of 1200sf is to be restored. Attached, I have designated the area where the honeysuckle was located, on the first page. The second page, was/is color coded with shape icons to show what we have already planted, and what is intended/proposed to be planted. ALL are described in the Legend (right side). I have now added the required 2 gallon reference for each proposed plant, and the numbers of each variety in the Legend, as well.
Is this sufficient?
Thank you for your help.
Sincerely,
Elfriede Walden

Hi Elfriede

We are getting closer...

It is important to note the number of plants removed & location on one sheet and what you plan to replace on the second sheet. On the second sheet with the new plant names the number of plants with the size of plants proposed.
We recommend 2 gallon size minimum.

thanks -
