

Nicholas Adams - Re: Clarification needed

---

From: Penny Littell
To: Barbecue Bao
Date: 7/6/2010 3:52 PM
Subject: Re: Clarification needed
CC: Brenden Barker; Esq. Elliott R. Teel

---

Mr. Le: There can be no occupancy of any units within this structure going forward.

You may clean, stain or paint. There can be NO construction of any kind unless and until building permits, electrical permits and plumbing permits are obtained for all past and future work. We cannot process the applications filed until you provide additional information which was identified for you.

You may work on the floors.

Siding in and of itself does not require a permit. if there are structural elements you are addressing in the course of siding, a permit must be obtained.

Let me repeat that noone should be living in this building until the posting notice is lifted.

>>> Barbecue Bao <barbecuebao@yahoo.com> 7/6/2010 3:47 PM >>>
Hi Penny,

Please advise if the followings are proper?

A. We can continue to stain, paint and clean

B. We can work on the floor as per Nick's

C. We are out by the end of today but being that the apartments are furnished with bedings, sofa and television, rented or used as personal residence, we are leaving them there.

D. Is siding to the left side, looking from the front, permitted? In other words, is it considered painting or structural work?

Cheers

Howard
Bao Bao Investments, Inc.