That's odd. The Yoga Spin Studio was an old permit application into unit 1A, same property. My asst must have used and old application and forgot to delete that and infill the new info. The new tenant is an office use.

Hi Paul,

I am in the process of reviewing your permit application for interior alterations to the above address. I did have one question about the project. The application says the new use of the space will be an office, but the plan says "Proposed Yoga and Spin Studio." I am wondering which is correct? If the new use will be a fitness studio this would require a change of use permit and new Certificate of Occupancy.

Thanks,
Chris
