cc to: Corporation Counsel

Dear Mr. Montalbano:

Although it is not known whether or not you have arrived at a final decision as to use of the former Government Reservation property on Diamond Island which you purchased several years ago, it seems best to inform you as to application of requirements of City Ordinances to use of the property now that it has come under private ownership.

Under the Zoning Ordinance the property is located in an R-2 Residence Zone where the primary use is limited to dwellings for not more than one family. Therefore conversion of existing buildings to residential use for more than one family would not be allowable unless authorized by the Board of Appeals. Any change of use of the buildings would also involve compliance with Building Code requirements relating to the proposed use.

A building permit is required from this department for a change of use of a building even though there are no alterations involved. A permit is also required for an addition to or alteration of an existing building or for construction of a new one.

We will be glad to discuss with you any plans you may have for use of this property or any questions concerning application of City Ordinances to them.

Very truly yours,

Albert J. Sears
Building Inspection Director

Inquiry: Former Government Reservation on Great Diamond Island

September 19, 1961

Mr. Kenneth D. Boehner
136 Winnisquamet Road
Hampton, N. H.

cc to: Planning Director
cc to: Corporation Counsel

Dear Mr. Boehner:

In regard to your inquiry concerning application of the Zoning Ordinance to a change of use of one of the buildings in the former government reservation on Great Diamond Island from barracks to a multi-family dwelling and store, the entire island except for a small area near the public boat landing is in an R-2 Residence Zone where neither of the proposed uses is allowable. As long as the reservation was under Federal Government ownership, requirements of City Ordinances did not apply to this area, but now that it has become private property such ordinances apply there in the same manner as to the rest of the island.

Under a recent amendment to the Zoning Ordinance the Board of Zoning Appeals are empowered to grant variances from Ordinance requirements on property located in any former military installation on the Islands within City limits, but only after the City Planning Board has reviewed the site plan filed with application for building permit and submitted its recommendations with respect thereto. Thus, while this department has no authority to issue a building permit for such a change of use as you propose to one of the existing buildings at this location, it is possible for you to go to the Board of Appeals for relief from compliance with the precise terms of the Ordinance. However, because of the number of buildings on the former reservation for which a change of use may be desired at one time or another, it seems doubtful that either the Planning Board would be willing to make recommendations or the Board of Appeals to grant a variance involving only one building without definite knowledge as to what the overall plans for development of the property may be.

Very truly yours,

Albert J. Sears
Building Inspection Director

Dear Sir

I am interested in buying one of the barracks on Fort McKinley, West Diamond Island.
However, before I invest any money I would appreciate your answer concerning the following question.

Is Fort McKinley zoned? From the zoning map I assume it is zoned either R-2 or not zoned at all.

If it is zoned and I apply for a building permit to change the interior to a multifamily unit and a store, will I be refused a permit until I receive a variance?

Thank you for your assistance.

Very truly yours
